Cincinnati Mayor Gets 162,976 While Total For Lausche Hits 180,611

COLUMBUS, May 11—Backers of Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert said today they would demand a recount in some areas before conceding that Mayor James Garfield Stewart of Cincinnati was the winner of the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Tuesday's primary.

In unofficial returns compiled by the secretary of state, Stewart apparently won the nomination by a scant 2,005-vote margin to face Mayor Frank J. Lausche of Cleveland, the run-away Democratic winner, in the November election. The unofficial tabulation, completed almost 24 hours after the polls closed, gave the 63-year-old Cincinnati mayor 162,976 votes to Tom Herbert's 159,971—the closest margin in the state's recent history.

Cleveland Recount
In Cleveland Reese H. Davis, former chairman of the Cuyahoga county executive committee and a leader of Tom Herbert forces there, said he would ask a recount in five Cleveland wards.

In Ward 12, he pointed out that Stewart polled a margin of 9 to 1 as the result of efforts of Herman H. Finkle and Alex Bernstein for the Cincinnati mayor, and in four other wards Davis said Herbert "should have won by a greater margin."

Other Tom Herbert backers indicated that a recount might also be asked in sections of Hamilton and Scioto counties, Stewart's greatest strongholds. Stewart polled 40,687 votes in his own Hamilton county and 3,291 in Scioto county.

SLAYER OF LEON TROTSKY ASKS REDUCED TERM

MEXICO CITY, May 11—The 16th criminal court of Mexico today was considering a petition by Jacques Mornard, convicted of slaying Leon Trotsky, that his 20-year prison sentence be reduced.

Mornard's attorney, Octavio Medellin Oros, argued that the slaying of the Bolshevik leader was not homicide.

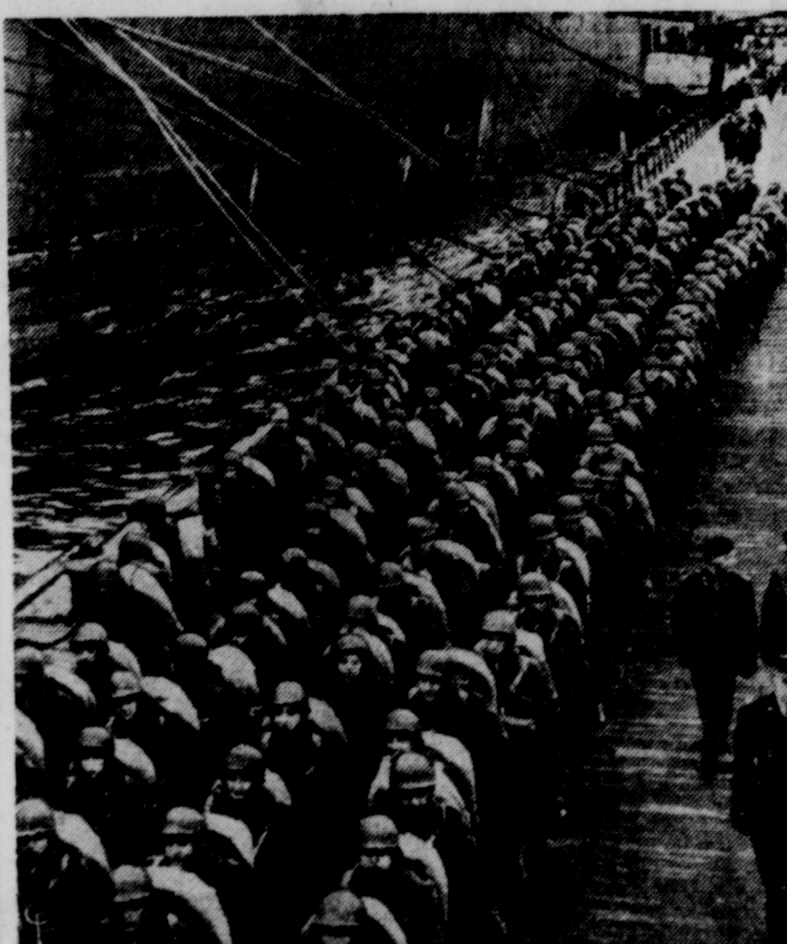

Mornard is now serving the third year of his sentence in the federal district penitentiary.

Developments On Mail Order Front Dispute FDR's Peace Forecast

WASHINGTON, May 11—President Roosevelt's observation that the Montgomery Ward case was at an "end" was buried today under a welter of new developments in the running battle between the War Labor Board and the far-flung units of the mail order chain.

Less than 24 hours after the government released Ward's Chicago properties, a new case was started toward the White House presenting again a test of strength between the United States and Sewell Avery, 69-year-old board chairman of Ward's.

These were the developments:
1. The WLB voted unanimously to send to the President the case of the Hummer Mfg. Co., Springfield, Ill., a war-plant subsidiary of Ward's, which like its parent concern, has refused to comply with a WLB order to sign a maintenance of membership contract.

2. The WLB ordered Ward's St. Paul, Minn., mail order house to sign a maintenance of membership agreement with the CIO Mail Order, Warehouse and Distribution Workers Union covering approximately 1,000 employees.

3. Echoes of the Ward's case reverberated in the San Francisco machinists' strike when the AFL Machinists Union charged it was being made a whipping boy by the WLB "in appeasement" for the barrage of criticism directed against the government as result of the seizure of Ward's Chicago facilities.

4. In congress, the house motion picture bill was passed.

GENEROSITY OF THIEF PROVES HIS UNDOING

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 11—Frederick J. Shea's idea of a good time is to distribute $100 among strangers in a tavern.

At least that's what he told police today after he was arrested in Gallagher's tavern in New Haven, Conn., and brought back to Providence for questioning in the embezzlement of $2,400 from his employer. He was nabbed when the tavernkeeper became suspicious over his generosity.

He told authorities he spent most of the money on a visit to Narragansett race track and a tour of taverns in Rhode Island and Connecticut. He was driving a stolen car and was carrying a Navy .38 caliber revolver.

BELLAMY'S SEPARATE

HOLLYWOOD, May 11—Ralph Bellamy disclosed today the end of the Bellamys' 13 years of marriage, announcing that he and his wife, Catherine, have engaged attorneys and are trying to reach a property settlement expected to be followed by divorce.

SOLONS SOUND PRAISE

Proposed Knox Successor Has Played Only Minor Role In Politics

WASHINGTON, May 11—Senate confirmation of the nomination of Undersecretary James V. Forrestal for promotion to secretary of the navy to succeed Frank Knox was virtually assured today.

A canvass of the senate naval affairs committee, to which the nomination was referred, indicated a favorable unanimous report. The committee will meet Monday to act on it.

While Secretary Knox and Secretary of War Stimson were appointed as Republicans in 1940, the White House was subjected to heavy pressure for elevation of Forrestal because of his record as undersecretary and acting secretary during many long trips taken by Knox.

Both Sen. Walsh (D) Mass., chairman of the senate naval affairs committee, and Rep. Vinson (D) Ga., chairman of the similar house committee, praised Forrestal.

The 52-year-old former New York investment banker, who is classed as a Democrat but who had not been active in party politics, won support from both Democrats and Republicans in congress.

NEW FIRE BOMB IN USE AGAINST JAP POSITIONS

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, May 11—American ingenuity has developed a new fire bomb which is being used today with devastating effect against Japanese positions in the Solomons.

It consists of a gasoline-filled belly tank, fitted with fuses at either end. Both fuses touch off the bomb on contact with the ground, spraying jets of flaming gasoline over a wide area.

The new bomb has proved far more effective than the usual magnesium-filled incendiary. The technique of a gasoline bomb was first used by RAAF Kittyhawk pilots during the rugged campaign through the Owen Stanley mountains in southeastern New Guinea.

Repeated attempts to bomb out the Wairope bridge, a key point in the Japanese line of communication, were unsuccessful until a pilot dropped his plane's belly tank on the bridge and then returned to set it afire with incendiary bullets.

This initial success caused development of the new bomb in United States factories.

"DAD" WINTERRINGER OF PARACHUTE FAME DIES

WAYNE, Neb., May 11—The death of W. E. "Dad" Winterringer, who made thousands of parachute jumps during 50 years as a balloonist, today revived many tales of his daring.

Winterringer died in Wayne of natural causes at the age of 76 despite the many early predictions that he would meet a violent end.

He made his first parachute jump at Coleridge, Neb., in 1888 for $100, and afterward made more than 4,000 ascensions at county fairs, carnivals and other celebrations throughout the country. He suffered many injuries, including numerous broken bones, but continued to jump from balloons until he was 70, when he retired.

ARMY RETURNS 33 BILLIONS

Taxpayers Promised Some Relief In War Burden By Debt Brightener

WASHINGTON, May 11—The nation's taxpayers were promised relief in their World War II tax burden today in the form of a 33 billion dollar "bonanza" kicked back by the War department in unexpended funds from previous appropriations.

This "brightener" for American taxpayers came from Rep. Snyder (D) Pa., chairman of the house appropriations military subcommittee, who emphasized, however, that no such gift could be expected from the "tiny" 49 billion dollar army budget asked this year.

"Return of this 33 billion dollars by the Army means that taxpayers will be required to pay that much less in supporting World War II," Snyder declared.

The Pennsylvania, who holds the Army's purse strings in congress, explained that methods for determining military needs in the way of money are now "on a solid basis" because size and scope of operations are more clearly defined.

He pointed out that the over-appropriations were vitally necessary in order to assure sufficient funds to meet all emergencies.

"The fortunes of war since the appropriation was made have turned favorably for us," said Snyder, "and the amount needed to finance the war fell 33 billion dollars below the estimates of the keenest minds in the country."

AERIALIST CHEATS DEATH BEFORE CIRCUS CROWD

NEW YORK, May 11—Herman Wallenda, one of the famous family of aerialists, was nursing two burned hands today after his narrow escape from death while attempting a double backflip on a high wire.

The music stopped as Wallenda balanced himself on the wire in Madison Square Garden. The large crowd was watching tensely as Wallenda poised for the difficult trick. The drums rolled to a crescendo—then the performer slipped!

The circus crowd shouted in dismay, but the aerialist had grasped the wire, averting a 45-foot fall. Attendees threw him a rope and he slid to safety.

INVASION SIGNS MOUNT AS HUNS TAKE PASTING

Allies Striving To Knock Supply Wheels Off Of Hitler's Wehrmacht

GERMAN SPIES ACTIVE

Nazis Seek To Disrupt D-Day Schedule, Block Service Plans

SUPREME ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, England, May 11—Second front symptoms loomed steadily and more perceptibly today as Allied airpower blasted away without pause to knock the supply wheels from under Adolf Hitler's wehrmacht, and the Nazis strove by every means to disrupt final invasion preparations.

The first shots of the second front, so to say, have thus been fired and "D"-day will find much of the strategic battleground already under fire. In a nutshell, Hitler is using every means to upset the Allied apperant by raiding and spying on land and sea while General Dwight D. Eisenhower is hoping to hamstring the mobility and sustaining power of the German armed forces through vast destruction of key railway and highway systems feeding the West.

To Eisenhower it is vitally important not only to cripple Hitler's traffic and supply facilities, but also to land on the beaches immediately after the initial armies enough supplies and fighting material to hold the ground won.

Must Block Supply

To Hitler it is vitally important to prevent or break up both these Allied goals. He knows that if, for example, the seaborne invasion were to plunge ashore some 60 divisions over a short period as possible, these would require three to four millions tons of shipping. That is something like 60,000 tons a day, offering a target so valuable that suicidal orders undoubtedly would be issued to the Luftwaffe, German naval units and the Nazi army to rip this mainstay to pieces cost what it may.

Grim Battle

This grim battle for supplies and transport, on both sides, will mount and is mounting in intensity as "D"-Day creeps closer. The first side to crack up and buckle in that respect will quickly become a total loser. For that reason, there is hard-bitten determination on each side to keep the wheels rolling and supplies coming, no matter the cost.

Hitler's main punches will come

TURKS TO LEARN HUN REACTION TO METAL BAN

LONDON, May 11—The German DNB agency said today that Franz Von Pappen, ambassador to Turkey, has returned to his post and added that he is "expected" this afternoon to submit the Nazis' "attitude" toward Turkish reduction of chrome shipments to the Reich.

"Ambassador Von Pappen will give expression to the Reich government's viewpoint on the situation established by the Turkish government's measures," declared the enemy broadcast.

The Turkish government cut down chrome shipments, vital to the German war effort, after representations by Anglo-American officials.

HOPKINS IMPROVING

ROCHESTER, Minn., May 11—Physicians at the Mayo clinic said today that Harry Hopkins, adviser to President Roosevelt, may be able to return to his Washington duties after an additional rest period. Hopkins, 53, left Rochester yesterday for his home. He underwent an abdominal operation in the clinic March 29. In 1937, he underwent an operation in the clinic for removal of a stomach ulcer.

6,100 Japs Die Before Allied Guns

Stilwell's Chinese Troops Take Two Villages In Mogaung Valley

KANDY, Ceylon, May 11—At least 6,100 Japanese troops have been killed by the Allied Fourth Corps in Burma during the last two months, the Southeast Asia High Command said today in announcing fresh gains by Allied forces in both North-Central Burma and Eastern India.

Chinese troops, commanded by American Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell and spearheaded by American tanks, occupied two more villages east of the Mogaung valley and north of Kamaing.

The tank-led assaults resulted in continued advances as the Japs fell back steadily. A further improvement in Allied positions in the Kohima sector of India was reported while Allied troops in Northwest Burma strengthened captured hill positions in the Arakan area.

The Allied forces slashed repeatedly at Jap positions in the Mogaung valley and threatened the enemy with entrapment behind Chindit units revealed to be in action in the Mawlu sector of Central Burma.

In Eastern India, British and Indian forces maintaining offensive stabs steadily pushed the Japanese from the Kohima and Imphal sectors. The Jap invaders were reported suffering terrible casualties at the hands of the Allied forces which frustrated the enemy efforts to seize both Imphal and Kohima, 60 miles to the north.

The Chindit forces landed by air in the Katha-Mawlu region below Mogaung, immediate objective of Gen. Stilwell, were reported battling the Japs near Mawlu. The Chindits fought for positions across the Jap path of retreat down the Mogaung valley and threatened to catch the Japs dropping.

YANK DOWNER OF 27 ENEMY PLANES HONORED

LONDON, May 11—Lieut. Gen. Carl A. Spaatz, commander of strategic air forces in the European theatre, today bestowed the Distinguished Service Cross on Capt. Robert Johnson, of Lawton, Okla., at a ceremony at United States Army Air Force headquarters.

Capt. Johnson has shot down 27 enemy planes in combat, the greatest number knocked out of the air in the European theatre to date by an American aviator. His feat surpassed the World War I record of Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker and he tied for honors with Maj. Richard Bong, Poplar, Wis., who has knocked down the same number in the Southwest Pacific.

Capt. Don Gentile was credited with destroying 30 German planes in European action, but seven of these were smashed on the ground.

TWO PAIRS OF NYLONS OFFERED AS REWARD

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., May 11—For the return of her lost scotty dog, Dorothy Lamour, sassy queen of the movies, today offered almost the most precious of feminine possessions two pairs of nylon hose.

They are nearly the last of her stock, she said, but her pet, "Peanuts" by name, means more to her than any number of stockings. "Peanuts" disappeared about a week ago in Los Angeles, she said. Dorothy has had the dog for 9 years. It was the gift of a fan.

THREE FLYERS KILLED

HOBBS, N. M., May 11—A crew of three officers and two enlisted men in a Flying Fortress from Hobbs Army Air Field died in a crash 71 miles east of El Paso, Tex., Col. Joseph P. Bailey, commanding officer, announced today.

NAZI MILITARY TARGETS AGAIN FACE BOMB RAIN

American Raids Follow Widespread Assaults By British Airmen

LULL IN GROUND WAR

Long Range Planes Of Russia Harass Fleeing Huns, Romanians

By International News Service
Repeated strikes were made today by American bombers, hitting German military targets after another mighty two-day raid by Allied war-planes based in Britain and Italy raked objectives in Germany, France, Belgium and Hungary.

Following up widespread night assaults by the Royal Air Force and Mediterranean Air Force planes, swarms of U. S. craft swept toward the invasion-threatened coast of France this morning. Shortly after they disappeared in the direction of Boulogne, Nazi radios indicated that portions of the Reich itself were among the daylight objectives.

Heavyweight British bombers, attacking "in strength," blasted Nazi railway yards in France and Belgium, as well as military targets along the French coast during the night. The railroad facilities were situated at Lens, and Lille, France, and Ghent and Courtrai, Belgium. The coastal targets were not immediately identified.

Meanwhile, other British-based planes struck at the German industrial and chemical city of Ludwigshafen, and also scattered mines in enemy-controlled waters. Speedy Mosquito bombers carried out the Ludwigshafen strike.

Lose 15 Bombers

While the British-based night raiders staged their raids, at a cost of only 15 planes, the Mediterranean Air Force planes effectively pummeled railroad yards and industrial targets in Budapest. Heavy and medium bombers struck at the Hungarian capital in the early morning hours, hitting the target area hard despite an overhanging haze.

The Budapest-bound planes left their Italian bases to round out a day in which heavy American Fortress and Liberator bombers battered the Nazi aircraft center of Wiener Neustadt, in Austria. Nearly 2,000 operations were flown in all attacks, with a total loss of 30 bombers and three escorting fighters.

At least 11 Nazi planes were downed by the American fighters, and tallying of the bombers' bag of enemy interceptors was not immediately completed.

EDDIE CANTOR WINS CATHOLIC WAR CITATION

NEW YORK, May 11—Eddie Cantor, stage, screen and radio star, was named today recipient of the 10th annual Catholic War Veterans' national commander's citation for his widespread entertainment of wounded soldiers on "The Purple Heart Circuit."

Presentation will be made May 21 at the veterans' military pageant, in New York City.

PRODUCTION RESUMED AT STRUCK FORD PLANT

WINDSOR, Ont., May 11—Production at the Windsor plant of the Ford Motor Co., of Canada was resumed today after a 20-day strike in which 16,000 were idle.

The Windsor strikers, members of UAW-CIO local 200, voted overwhelmingly to return to work last night after the Canadian War Labor Board warned them their complaint would receive no consideration until they went back to work.

The grievance procedure clause in their contract with the firm is in dispute. The strikers voted to return to work after appeals by their own local leaders and Richard T. Frankenstein, UAW-CIO vice president.

STAY OUT OF "HOT WATER" AVOID WASHDAY TROUBLE

Going back to the old washboard and tub wouldn't be any fun. To avoid the possibility take the best possible care of your electric washer. Quality appliances are built to provide years of satisfactory service—and they'll do just that if you follow the manufacturer's instructions pertaining to their operation and care. When something goes wrong, call your appliance dealer and have the repair work done—before it's too late.

These Tips Will Help:

- Keep washing time to a minimum by soaking very soiled clothes a half hour in warm soapy water; by using a good water softener is necessary; and by using the proper quantity of a good soap powder or soap.
- Know the capacity of your washer and avoid overloading it. An overload of clothes may strain both mechanism and motor.
- In cold weather, if the washer is stored in an unheated place, allow it to warm up to room temperature before starting motor.
- Do not overload the wringer. Adjust the rolls for the thickness of the material and spread the clothing evenly across the rolls as you start feeding thin sections, gradually increasing the thickness.
- Do not put metallic articles, like buckles which may cut the rolls, through the wringer. If such objects must be put through the wringer, fold the clothes so that the hard objects do not contact the rolls.
- Immediately after the washing is done, drain tub, rinse, remove soap curd or lint and wipe your washer clean and dry. Leave cover off until thoroughly aired.
- Wringer rolls and wringer should be cleaned and wiped dry. Release the pressure on the rolls to preserve the springs and rubber.
- Drain the hose thoroughly and be sure there are no sharp kinks or bends. Disconnect the electric cord, wipe it dry and wind carefully on hooks provided.
- Follow the manufacturer's instructions for oiling and greasing.
- Have your washer inspected regularly by your appliance dealer.

COMMITTEE TO AID VETERANS IN FARM PLANS

F. K. Blair, Pickaway county agricultural agent will appoint a committee to aid returning war veterans in making decisions on operating or buying farms.

The Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation also announced the forming of a campaign to assist returning veterans to obtain unemployment compensation while they seek employment.

Mr. Blair said the duty of the committee would be to talk to veterans interested concerning their future educational training and to assist them in finding satisfactory locations, either as laborers, renters or owners of farms and to aid been promoted to the rank of corporal at Camp Gordon, Ga.

T/Cpl. Robert Immell has returned to Fort Benning, Ga., after passing a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Immell, Yellowbud.

in providing the necessary credit. The county agent also will prevent location of individuals on farms where it is obviously impossible for them to make a living and to prevent agriculture from becoming a dumping ground for men who have been urged to acquire '40 acres and a jeep'.

'SWEEPS DISTRICT'

Mel G. Underwood, Jr.

According to complete returns from the Eleventh Congressional District, Attorney Mel G. Underwood, Jr., of New Lexington, swept every county in the district by overwhelming majority at Tuesday's election.

Underwood was an easy winner, piling up a plurality of more than two to one over his opponent. He easily carried his opponent's home county of Ross and showed exceptional vote-getting strength in all counties. Fairfield, Perry, Hocking, Ross and Pickaway, all gave him big majorities.

STAY OUT OF "HOT WATER" AVOID WASHDAY TROUBLE

Going back to the old washboard and tub wouldn't be any fun. To avoid the possibility take the best possible care of your electric washer. Quality appliances are built to provide years of satisfactory service—and they'll do just that if you follow the manufacturer's instructions pertaining to their operation and care. When something goes wrong, call your appliance dealer and have the repair work done—before it's too late.

These Tips Will Help:

- Keep washing time to a minimum by soaking very soiled clothes a half hour in warm soapy water; by using a good water softener is necessary; and by using the proper quantity of a good soap powder or soap.
- Know the capacity of your washer and avoid overloading it. An overload of clothes may strain both mechanism and motor.
- In cold weather, if the washer is stored in an unheated place, allow it to warm up to room temperature before starting motor.
- Do not overload the wringer. Adjust the rolls for the thickness of the material and spread the clothing evenly across the rolls as you start feeding thin sections, gradually increasing the thickness.
- Do not put metallic articles, like buckles which may cut the rolls, through the wringer. If such objects must be put through the wringer, fold the clothes so that the hard objects do not contact the rolls.
- Immediately after the washing is done, drain tub, rinse, remove soap curd or lint and wipe your washer clean and dry. Leave cover off until thoroughly aired.
- Wringer rolls and wringer should be cleaned and wiped dry. Release the pressure on the rolls to preserve the springs and rubber.
- Drain the hose thoroughly and be sure there are no sharp kinks or bends.
- Disconnect the electric cord, wipe it dry and wind carefully on hooks provided.
- Follow the manufacturer's instructions for oiling and greasing.
- Have your washer inspected regularly by your appliance dealer.

2,005 LEAD OF STEWART WILL BE CHALLENGED

Margin Of GOP Victory Smallest In Recent History Of State

The combined total of his five opponents by 31,035 votes was almost overlooked in the whirlwind finish of Attorney General Herbert in late returns from northern Ohio.

Stewart's nomination was virtually conceded when he piled up a comfortable 18,000-vote lead over Tom Herbert, his nearest opponent in the four-man GOP field, with less than 2,000 polling places unreported.

Lead Reduced

However, returns from Cuyahoga county, the attorney general's home county, cut Stewart's lead first to 11,000 votes; then to 5,000 votes, and even down to less than 1,000. Finally, Stewart held a 1,700 vote lead with 29 polling places in Jefferson county missing. These boosted Stewart's margin back over 2,000.

The final complete unofficial GOP gubernatorial count, as compiled by the secretary of state, gave Stewart 162,976; Thomas Herbert 159,971; Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert 137,863; and Albert E. Payne, of Springfield, 15,793.

The Democratic unofficial final gave Lausche 180,611; former Congressman Martin L. Sweeney of Cleveland, 64,366; James W. Huffman, Columbus attorney and son-in-law of former Gov. and U. S. Sen. Vic Donahey, 38,349; Frazier Reams, Toledo attorney, 26,378; Frank A. Dye, Columbus attorney, 11,898; and Walter Baertschi, of Toledo, 8,585.

Lausche Amazes

Lausche captured more than 54 percent of the Democratic vote for governor and his amazing total surprised most veteran political observers who had not foreseen anything near that decisive a margin.

The Cincinnati mayor in gaining the GOP nomination received between 34 and 35 percent of the Republican vote for governor and his weaker vote-getting strength in populous northern Ohio led observers to predict a close race between the two nominees in November.

Republicans, on the basis of the vote for governor, outvoted the Democrats in the primary 376,373 to 330,187.

Informed that Tom Herbert might ask for a recount of certain precincts, the Cincinnati mayor-at-large asserted that "I certainly have no objection to a count, a recount, or a re-count."

"All I am interested in," said Stewart, "is a thoroughly honest count over the entire state, and may the fellow with the most votes win."

In 1276 Roger Bacon published a book which gave the first description of how lenses can aid sight.

was lost in the Budapest attacks. Although the returning crew members hesitated to estimate full extent of the damage dealt the Hungarian capital, as the haze interfered with observation, the Nazi-controlled MTI agency from the Balkan country revealed that huge fires were touched off.

Long-range bombers of the Russian air force also were active, hunting down fleeing remnants of the German and Romanian garrison of Sevastopol. What Axis troops managed to escape the Crimean naval base before its liberation, were pursued out into the Black sea by Soviet airmen.

Warplanes of the Black sea fleet attacked at least one enemy evacuation convoy with good results. Two troop-laden transports, a coastal vessel and "several" landing barges were sunk and other German craft were badly damaged.

On the land fronts in Russia, old Poland and Rumania, no material changes were reported.

Likewise, in the various sectors of the Italian battlegrounds activity was restricted mostly to artillery and patrol action. Considerable fire from German guns in the Cassino area was answered by Allied guns.

The maintenance of membership provision is the fundamental issue in all of the ramifications of the Ward dispute. Avery has continually challenged the authority of the WLB to order such a clause. It requires an employee, with a 15-day period, to decide whether to resign from a union or remain a member for the life of the contract.

Ordered To Sign

Hummer was ordered last August to sign a maintenance of membership agreement with the AFL machinists, but has refused to do so. The board will formally send the case to President Roosevelt within a day or two. President Roosevelt can then personally order the firm to sign and, if it remains defiant, seize the plant.

The case differs from the Chicago dispute in that Hummer is a direct war plant making carburetors, propellers and gun mounts for military aircraft. Avery argued in the Chicago dispute that the government had no right to seize a non-war facility.

The WLB's order for maintenance of membership at Ward's St. Paul plant is similar to a half dozen other cases involving the firm's Portland, Ore.; Oakland, Cal.; Denver, Detroit and New York outlets. In each of the latter cases, Ward's has filed suit in federal court challenging the WLB's authority to issue such orders.

In both the Hummer and St. Paul cases the union involved has previously been certified by the NLRB as the bargaining agent, the AFL machinists in August, 1940, and the CIO Mail Order Workers Union in November, 1942. In the recent Chicago crisis, Avery questioned the union's claim of representing employees, but the CIO subsequently won a new election.

"We made no mistakes in providing such a large amount of money. It was agreed by all concerned that we should supply enough to meet all possible emergencies—and at the time we were shooting in the dark.

"We did not know what turn the fortunes of war would take," said Snyder after President Roosevelt asked congress for a $49,283,916,500 military budget in the 1944-45 fiscal year to "operate an army of seven million 700 thousand officers and men and women on the offensive in global war through June 30, 1945."

Only $15,676,652,700 was asked in new appropriations, with the President suggesting that the thirty-three billion unexpended funds would be available starting July 1, 1944, to make up the grand total.

Congress appropriated seventy-one billion 500 million dollars to carry the military operations through the current fiscal year.

American tank forces and Chinese troops operating between Inkangantang and Malawawng pushed persistently against the Japs. The Chinese inched steadily forward along both the east and west banks of the Mogaung river.

The ground operations were supported continuously from the air and tank units on the ground were directed against Jap positions by Allied fliers.

Gurkas and Gachin levies were in continued contact with Jap forces in the Waza area of Fort Hertz valley, east of Mogaung valley.

Allied airmen also gave strong support to ground units on the Assam front of Northwest Burma, repeatedly breaking up Jap troop concentrations.

From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

What Makes "A Real American Town?"

Visitor said to me the other day: "Joe, you've got a real American town here—a town you can be proud of."

Afterwards, I got to wondering just what he meant. We aren't much different from any other town our size. A few nice stores... a village green... and 27 blue stars on the Service Flag in Town Hall.

Not much exciting happens, either. We work hard... have our Friday evening socials at the Parish House... and the kids play baseball and go fishing...

In our private life, we live and let live. If we often disagree on politics... if some of us like beer, some buttermilk... we still respect one another's rights and opinions.

What makes our town "American"? From where I sit, it's not because we're different but because we're so much like all other towns that add up to America—where self respect and tolerance are guiding principles.

New York banker to the man digging the ditch—were consulted in making appropriations to prosecute the war," he continued.

"We made no mistakes in providing such a large amount of money. It was agreed by all concerned that we should supply enough to meet all possible emergencies—and at the time we were shooting in the dark.

"We did not know what turn the fortunes of war would take," said Snyder after President Roosevelt asked congress for a $49,283,916,500 military budget in the 1944-45 fiscal year to "operate an army of seven million 700 thousand officers and men and women on the offensive in global war through June 30, 1945."

Only $15,676,652,700 was asked in new appropriations, with the President suggesting that the thirty-three billion unexpended funds would be available starting July 1, 1944, to make up the grand total.

Congress appropriated seventy-one billion 500 million dollars to carry the military operations through the current fiscal year.

6,100 Japs Die Before Allied Guns

American tank forces and Chinese troops operating between Inkangatang and Malawaw pushed persistently against the Japs. The Chinese inched steadily forward along both the east and west banks of the Mogauing river.

The ground operations were supported continuously from the air and tank units on the ground were directed against Jap positions by Allied fliers.

Gurkas and Gachin levies were in continued contact with Jap forces in the Waza area of Fort Hertz valley, east of Mogauing valley.

Allied airmen also gave strong support to ground units on the Assam front of Northwest Burma, repeatedly breaking up Jap troop concentrations.

What Makes "A Real American Town?"

Visitor said to me the other day: "Joe, you've got a real American town here—a town you can be proud of."

Afterwards, I got to wondering just what he meant. We aren't much different from any other town our size. A few nice stores... a village green... and 27 blue stars on the Service Flag in Town Hall.

Not much exciting happens, either. We work hard... have our Friday evening socials at the Parish House... and the kids play baseball and go fishing...

Five-Month Controversy In Pan-American Family Nears End
COUNTRY STABILIZED

Influence Of Nazis Is Believed To Have Been Removed

WASHINGTON, May 11—State department officials acknowledged today that Ambassador Avra M. Warren has been sent to Bolivia as a step toward extending recognition to that country, thus ending a five-month-old controversy in the Pan American family.

Warren, who is ambassador designate to Panama, turned up unexpectedly in the Bolivian capital, accompanied by Maj. Gen. Ralph Wooten, former U. S. military attaché in Chile.

Warren has been sent to La Paz to make an investigation of the present government there, to determine whether or not the Fascist and Argentine influence, which the State department originally objected to, has been removed.

No U. S. Ambassador

The United States has had no ambassador in Bolivia since the withdrawal of Pierre Boal, following the revolution last December. Secretary of State Hull has repeatedly referred to the Bolivian government as a "Junta," and has declined to recognize it.

The same action was taken by the other American Republics, except Argentina, after consultation among the foreign ministers.

But now the situation is under revision, with a strong possibility that recognition will be extended even before the Bolivian elections in July.

The State department has been under pressure recently by other American governments, which feel that the Bolivian government has shown enough stability to be recognized. Both Brazilian Ambassador Carlos Martins and Chilean Ambassador Rodolfo Michels have called recently at the State department to express this view on behalf of their governments.

The governments of Cuba and Uruguay are understood to share the same view.

Rates Recognition

In diplomatic circles, it was said that Bolivia deserves recognition on the following counts:

1. The government, now headed by President Gualberto Villarroel, has been in power for five months.
2. The "Junta" has cleaned house, ousting six anti-democratic cabinet members, and removing the influence of the NMR party.
3. The Bolivian government has not fallen into the arms of Argentina, though Argentine blandishments have been considerable.
4. The government has expressed an apparently sincere desire to cooperate in economic matters, including exportation of tin, tungsten, and quinine to the United States.

Ambassador Warren has just been shifted from the Dominican republic to Panama. No mention has been made of his going to Bolivia. But it was acknowledged today that his trip is directly related to a plan for recognition.

BLOOD DONORS URGED TO MAKE EARLY CALLS

All persons who wish to donate blood when the Franklin county chapter of the American Red Cross mobile unit makes its sixth visit to Circleville next Thursday and Friday are asked to call the Red Cross rooms or Mrs. A. Hulse Hays so that times for appearance can be designated.

The unit will be at the First Methodist church next Thursday between 12 noon and 5 p. m. and on Friday between 10:30 a. m. and 2:30 p. m.

In the past Pickaway county donors have always fulfilled their quotas but have been negligent in making their reservations. Those persons who have charge of the registrations urge that all persons who have formerly donated call Mrs. Hays either at her home or at the Red Cross rooms or call Mrs. Hulse Hays who is in charge of the arrangements.

Persons who have developed colds within two weeks of the scheduled visit are asked not to register so that it will not be necessary for the committee to find substitutes at the last minute.

Minors under 18 years of age are asked to have releases from their parents or guardians.

JACKSON SCHOOL EXERCISES SET FOR MID-MONTH

Baccalaureate services for the graduating class of 1944 will be Sunday, May 14 at 8 p. m., in the Jackson township school building.

NOTE—Word from the Dewey camp is that Aldrich will be Dewey's Secretary of the Treasury.

UNIQUE DIPLOMAT

For a long time, one of the root problems in the State department has been that U. S. diplomats get too steeped in the rarefied atmosphere of pink teas, protocol and Old World diplomacy, forgetting what the United States is like.

This is not entirely their fault. When a man is forced to live outside the U. S. A. for five to ten years at a stretch, naturally he takes on the habits, the accents, the eccentricities of foreign countries. Even living in Washington, U. S. diplomats tend naturally to hobnob with their own set, see little of Congress or the average man in the street, forget how the everyday American citizen feels and thinks.

A new, livelier, more American group of career diplomats have been entering the State department with a broader, more progressive viewpoint than the old "Broad A" boys carefully culled from Harvard. However, when a youngster, starting at the age of about 22 years, stays on the job for several years, he gets stale and needs a refresher course.

That was what Laurence Duggan, political advisor to Hull on Latin American affairs, decided the other day. One of the best young men in diplomacy, he had entered the State Department in the Hoover Administration at the age of 25, had risen to the third top stratum of the Department. But now, he has decided to get out and get reacquainted.

"If you stay in an ivory tower too long," says Duggan, "your outlook on life and your mental processes become warped."

Duggan may come back later. Perhaps self-imposed sabbatical leave may set a precedent for a system whereby career diplomats, after years abroad, can take a year off working and talking with their fellow Americans.

BREWERS WIN SEVEN STRAIGHT; BIRDS IN WEST

By International News Service

American Association standings as a whole remained unchanged today as the Milwaukee Brewers strengthened their hold on first place after chalking up seven straight victories.

The Brewers yesterday defeated the Toledo Mud Hens 6 to 3. Tommy Nelson, second baseman for the Milwaukee aggregation held the spotlight as star performer. He knocked his third homer of the season in the sixth frame to break a 3 to 3 deadlock and then singled in another run in the eighth. Toledo travels to Minneapolis for tonight's game.

The Columbus Red Birds were enroute to St. Paul where they open a new series tonight. The Birds yesterday upset the Kansas City Blues with a 3 to 1 defeat. Leroy Pfund hurled for the Columbus team until the sixth when he was replaced by Red Barrett. Vince Debiase was charged with the loss.

At Minneapolis, the Millers defeated Indianapolis 2 to 1 in one of the fastest games recorded this season. It lasted only one hour and 14 minutes.

Pitching of Otis Clark and homers by Bobby Dill and Catcher Aragon put the game on ice for the home team.

The other scheduled game, Louisville at St. Paul, was called on account of rain.

In the past Pickaway county donors have always fulfilled their quotas but have been negligent in making their reservations. Those persons who have charge of the registrations urge that all persons who have formerly donated call Mrs. Hays either at her home or at the Red Cross rooms or call Mrs. Hays, who is in charge of the arrangements.

Persons who have developed colds within two weeks of the scheduled visit are asked not to register so that it will not be necessary for the committee to find substitutes at the last minute. Minors under 18 years of age are asked to have releases from their parents or guardians.

people from all over the country to tell them about Dewey. He has concentrated especially on certain key newspaper publishers, and on leaders of the radio industry and of the motion-picture industry.

His general sales talk is to tell them how close he is to Dewey and to reassure them that they needn't have any misgivings about him.

"You don't need to worry about this boy," Aldrich told one caller. "He's in good hands. He seeks my advice on financial matters, and you can rely on the fact that he will not go wrong."

NOTE—Word from the Dewey camp is that Aldrich will be Dewey's Secretary of the Treasury.

UNIQUE DIPLOMAT

For a long time, one of the root problems in the State department has been that U. S. diplomats get too steeped in the rarefied atmosphere of pink teas, protocol and Old World diplomacy, forgetting what the United States is like.

This is not entirely their fault. When a man is forced to live outside the U. S. A. for five to ten years at a stretch, naturally he takes on the habits, the accents, the eccentricities of foreign countries. Even living in Washington, U. S. diplomats tend naturally to hobnob with their own set, see little of Congress or the average man in the street, forget how the everyday American citizen feels and thinks.

A new, livelier, more American group of career diplomats have been entering the State department with a broader, more progressive viewpoint than the old "broad A" boys carefully culled from Harvard. However, when a youngster, starting at the age of about 22 years, stays on the job for several years, he gets stale and needs a refresher course.

That was what Laurence Duggan, political advisor to Hull on Latin American affairs, decided the other day. One of the best young men in diplomacy, he had entered the State Department in the Hoover Administration at the age of 25, had risen to the third top stratum of the Department. But now, he has decided to get out and get reacquainted.

"If you stay in an ivory tower too long," says Duggan, "your outlook on life and your mental processes become warped." Duggan may come back later. Perhaps self-imposed sabbatical leave may set a precedent for a system whereby career diplomats, after years abroad, can take a year off working and talking with their fellow Americans.

BREWERS WIN SEVEN STRAIGHT; BIRDS IN WEST

By International News Service
American Association standings as a whole remained unchanged today as the Milwaukee Brewers strengthened their hold on first place after chalking up seven straight victories.

The Brewers yesterday defeated the Toledo Mud Hens 6 to 3. Tommy Nelson, second baseman for the Milwaukee aggregation held the spotlight as star performer. He knocked his third homer of the season in the sixth frame to break a 3 to 3 deadlock and then singled in another run in the eighth. Toledo travels to Minneapolis for tonight's game.

The Columbus Red Birds were enroute to St. Paul where they open a new series tonight. The Birds yesterday upset the Kansas City Blues with a 3 to 1 defeat. Leroy Pfund hurled for the Columbus team until the sixth when he was replaced by Red Barrett. Vince Debiase was charged with the loss.

At Minneapolis, the Millers defeated Indianapolis 2 to 1 in one of the fastest games recorded this season. It lasted only one hour and 14 minutes.

Pitching of Otis Clark and homers by Bobby Dill and Catcher Aragon put the game on ice for the home team.

The other scheduled game,

Louisville at St. Paul, was called on account of rain.

EJECTING THE SKUNK

THERE is nothing poetical about this war. Licking Hitler is like getting a skunk out of the house. In far too many cases the building has to be burned or blasted down, and even then there is a small left that will take a long time to eliminate. In Rome, where the unsavory intruder has dug in more effectively than usual, the cleansing process will be especially difficult.

In some cases of patriotic ejection, water takes the place of fire. The destruction of the great Pescara dam, in the hydro-electric system east of Rome, is a case in point. The forced flooding of that area is another sad example of the defensive destruction which has had to follow the Hitler gang everywhere.

There is coming, now, a back-wash that will overwhelm the Nazis as Pharaoh and his gang were handled in the Red sea. But not all the water in the world, or all the perfumes of Araby, will ever sweeten that outfit.

WHAT MOTHER NEEDS

MOTHER enjoys flowers and candy and a new handbag and being taken out to dinner. She would probably, however, enjoy those pleasures more if they seemed to come to her spontaneously and individually at various times. They sometimes seem to her a little forced when they are inspired by the convention of Mother's Day, and all the children do it because all the other children are doing it.

Mothers, however, are not disposed to be critical of children bearing gifts. Their great reward for a life's good work lies in evidences of affection and gratitude on the part of their sons and daughters. If they fail to give gifts, Mothers love them just the same anyhow. But if they bring them, Mothers have that greatest of all satisfactions to a good craftsman, that of having their important labors appreciated.

But Mothers need certain things beyond material gifts, and need them this year beyond other years. They need to have their courage sustained by cheerfulness around them—for never did mothers young or old carry such a weight of anxiety. They need consideration in small things—for never did they try to do so much and such varied work. They need help in some of these daily duties. And they need that love which is kind, is patient, which endureth all things, and which never fails.

An unusual bit of war drama is the death of George Sylvester Viereck, Jr., "killed in action," while his father, a notorious objector in the last war, faces trial for "seditious conspiracy" in this one.

WASHINGTON Report

Bricker, Stassen, Johnston
Vice Presidential Choices?

Knox Death Seen Heavy Blow
To Army-Navy Merger Plans

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Backers of Ohio's Governor John Bricker, United States Chamber of Commerce President Eric Johnston and Lieut. Comdr. Harold Stassen of the Navy for the Republican presidential nomination are standing their ground, although most of them now privately concede New York's Governor Thomas E. Dewey will win the GOP plum in a romp.

It is an open secret on Capitol Hill that Dewey probably will be named to head the ticket on the first ballot, and certainly by the second.

Thus, with announcement that Gen. Douglas MacArthur is not a candidate, Bricker, Johnston and Stassen—in the eyes of their sponsors—are top-flight vice presidential timber, and authoritative political sources believe one of them will be Dewey's running mate when the chips are down.

Led by Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, backers of the Buckeye governor will wage a hard but futile fight and then gladly settle for the second place on the ticket. Republicans are said to feel that Bricker, from the middle west, would be certain to bring Ohio into their camp in November. They regard him as a sound, able citizen who would round out what they consider an "invincible" Dewey ticket.

Stassen, who resigned as Minnesota's governor to enter the Navy, will be backed to the hilt by Senator Joseph Ball, his campaign manager. Stassen, who already has announced he can be "drafted" for the presidency, is thought also, willing to accept the vice presidential nomination—particularly in the light of views on international cooperation and peace machinery expressed by Dewey in his speech last week in New York.

The real "dark horse," however, may well be suave, world-minded Eric Johnston, who has put his views more and more before the public as time for the convention approaches.

Johnston, a middle-of-the-road liberal, is a far westerner, from the state of Washington, who would weigh heavily on the Pacific coast

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

WILLKIE SAYS HE'S WRONG MAN

WASHINGTON — A friend of Wendell Willkie's who is close to the Roosevelt administration told him the other day that a group of highup officials had been discussing him as the best man for secretary of the navy. While they could not speak for the President, it was the consensus of this group, Willkie was told, that he would be the ideal choice for this important war job.

Willkie gave his friend the following reply:

"Naturally I should be honored to serve my country in such an important capacity. But it would be a mistake for the President to make me secretary of the navy for this reason. We are on the verge of a tremendous invasion. The plans for that invasion were made long ago. I could add nothing to them. Nor could I add anything to their execution. I know nothing about the Navy, and it would be a mistake to appoint me."

"Furthermore, at a time like this, my appointment would be considered political, and politics should play no part in wartime, especially on the eve of a great invasion. At these times, our country comes first. I know that the President, who is out of town and hasn't talked to your friends, will feel the same way."

MORGENTHAU INSPECTION

Hard-working Henry Morgenthau recently caused a furore in the Treasury department which might well be emulated by other cabinet members.

The secretary of the treasury decided to make a surprise inspection of his own shop. So, at about 3 p. m. one warm day last week, he walked into one of the treasury divisions.

It was enjoying not exactly a sit-down strike, but at least a sit-down. One young lady was reading a book, another was perusing a magazine, one was eating an ice-cream cone, another had her shapely legs on a radiator, dreaming about Spring, as the dignified secretary of the treasury stepped in. In fairness, it should be said that their chiefs had been out of town several days on necessary war business.

However, the dismayed secretary of the treasury did find one lady who was working diligently. He inquired what it was about.

"The Byrd report," she replied, referring to the inquiry on government efficiency undertaken by Senator Byrd of Virginia.

"Thank God Byrd isn't here now," exploded Morgenthau.

Afterward, Morgenthau called in some of his high executives and raised Cain. He ordered a tightening up of the woman-power situation and also expects to make surprise inspection trips more frequently.

NOTE—Secretary of the Interior Ickes also used to drop in on his employees, much to their annoyance. In the Coolidge administration, Secretary of State Kellogg, and in the Hoover administration, Secretary of State Stimson did the same.

SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY ALDRICH?

Physical Therapy Aid in Arthralgia

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.
IN THE SPRING the joints and muscles are notably likely to get stiff and sore. This used to be called by the old word rheumatic. Nowadays the sufferer is more likely to be frightened by the more dread word arthritis. Perhaps we had better switch to the even more modern word arthralgia, which simply means pain in the organs of locomotion.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The causes of these conditions and the reasons for their occurrence in the spring may be various. What is spring fever? Well, it's a combination of the accumulated fatigue of living so much indoors in the winter, and a winter diet dominant in foods that are low in vitamins, and the resurgence of the endocrines with some of them overdoing it, and some of them underdoing it, thyroid insufficiency and gonad oversufficiency, and psychic states of the "Oh! what's the use?" order.

The same operating causes, with the addition of postural strain produce arthralgia. If it gets serious enough to require treatment not one but a combination of methods corresponding to the multiplicity of causes should be used. Thus we have reports of help in arthritis from Vitamin B concentrates, and from thyroid exhibition. The thyroid patient droops all over and the drooping leads to a postural strain and the postural strain causes arthralgia.

Middle aged women patients in the menopause are often crippled by joint pains which yield very well to ovarian extract therapy. All these are established methods of treatment in the arthritis clinic.

Physical Therapy

I am impressed though in the treatment of these arthritic and semi-arthritic patients with the neglect of the methods of physical therapy—water, heat and cold, massage, electricity. Why they are not more used by American physicians is a mystery. There is a feeling that they can only be given in a special establishment—a spa or resort. But most of the very effective ones can be given in the bathroom of any American home. I list some of the best:

Army inductees, it is estimated, require a minimum of one and one-half dental fillings.

(1) Depending on heat: Hot bath, general, two or more times a day. Hot and cold wet compresses and applications. The hip bath. Hot and cold showers, or water poured from a height from a bucket or pitcher. Hot mud pack.

(2) Mechanical: Massage and rubbing—even amateur massage is valuable. Active and passive exercise directed at the sore muscles and joints.

(3) Counter irritant: Sunlight. Ultra-violet lamp. Just plain electric bulb. Carbon arc lamp.

Special electrical methods—such as diathermy and ionization and high frequency are available in most North American cities, but how seldom used.

How much better these methods are than dosing with drugs, or the consumption of fancy and faddy diets.

Gold Treatment

Rheumatic exudations have been likened to smouldering sources of disease and heat properly used often effects their absorption. The mechanical effects of massage in stretching tissue accomplishes the same purpose.

The new gold treatment of arthritis is probably the most hopeful agent that has been introduced in the treatment of that troublesome condition. It does not work in all cases, but it is worth a try in properly selected ones.

In the early stages of rheumatoid arthritis in young people before deformities or limitation of movement or crippling has occurred it is its best field. It must be given under the care of a physician as it is given hypodermically into the muscle or into a vein. It often brings prompt relief from pain and limitation of motion.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

C. D.—My boy is 10 years old, 5 feet tall and weighs 72 pounds. What is normal for that age?

Answer: Ninety pounds.

STARS SAY—

For Thursday, May 11

ALTHOUGH the prospects are for delays, set backs and some tenacious obstacles to be coped with there is nothing in the way of dangers and difficulties that may not be surmounted by good sense, shrewd tactics and well-thought-out strategies. There is an element of the furtive, undercover and sinister, but alertness and sound judgment may circumvent these. Summon determination and diligence and all should thrive. In personal relations there is sign of romance, youthful enjoyments and other happy and wise pleasures. New friends and elders should be easily won over.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have a secure and productive year, with much promise of sound success and progress, if they bring to bear determination, hard work, cleverness and vigilance in certain stubborn situations or difficult situations, in which duplicity, intrigue or treachery figure. In frustrating moments use sound and reasonable judgement or seek the wise counsel of elders or reliable friends. Romance and social pleasures are also indicated. A child born on this day may have stability of character, with diligence and good judgment, which may assist it over impediments or treacheries. Its life should not be without its romance and pleasures.

NORTH TO DANGER by TOM GILL

CHAPTER THIRTY

Throwing both arms across his face, Colin groped his way into the cabin. He called. No answer. He felt about until he reached Tennant, dragged him outside and, rolling him in the snow, beat the flames from his clothes.

One more trip into that blazing cabin—and only one. But Colin was able to rescue his parka and two heavy blankets.

His dogs were dancing in a frenzy as he laid Nate down among the blankets and tied him to the toboggan. In a hoarse voice he gave the signal to his team; wildly barking, they tore down the trail.

Dog-tired, barely able to keep pace with the team, Colin rode the toboggan on the down-grades.

Hours later, it seemed, Colin was standing before his cabin door. With a sense of blurred recognition he knew that someone was coming out; the dogs were barking and jumping. Then all the world went black.

Colin awoke on the floor of his cabin, with someone kneeling by his side; and as his vision cleared he spoke the one word, "Blair."

Painfully he asked through frost and fist-cracked lips, "Where's Nate?"

Then he saw Tennant's body sprawled across the room.

Aching in every joint, Colin forced himself to his feet and, with Blair's help, laid Nate on the bunk. Colin read the question in Blair's eyes. "I knocked him down," he said. "He must have hit the stove when he fell. Let's get some water."

Together they bathed Tennant's wounds. Then Colin looked up. "How long was I out?" he asked. "Not long," Blair did not raise her eyes from Tennant. "Where did this happen?"

"In his cabin."

Rae forced a little hot water between Nate's dry lips; then at sight of Blair's clouded eyes, he came and stood over her.

"Better say it, Blair," he urged. "What's the use of saying anything? But did you have to go to his cabin to force a quarrel?"

"I didn't," Colin faltered, "but—Blair," he said, "it's no good kidding ourselves. There's something in Nate, or me, or in both of us—We'll never change—As soon as this is over I'm going away. Again he looked down at Nate's feverish face. "If he's not conscious by morning, I'll take him into Learmonth."

"Not to Learmonth!" Fear quickened Blair's voice. "Keep away from Learmonth! Dove is looking for you. I think he's found out something, Colin. He wanted to know if you were here at the cabin, and I told him you were out on the trap line along the Upper Nelson. I never saw him so deadly quiet. Does he know you followed him last night?"

"I don't think so."

"What did you find?"

Rae told her, "I think that plane was bound for the arm of the bay where the photographs were taken," he said. "Dove passed me on the way back. I'm almost certain he didn't see my track." He was silent, his thoughts on Blair's father: Had Dr. Benedict talked?

"It may have been Colonel Dowling's message," he heard Blair say. Sharply, Colin turned. "What message?"

"Colonel Dowling radioed me from Winnipeg. He's flying up to see you day after tomorrow. Do you suppose—" She stopped, and with a little cry leaned over Nate who had opened his eyes. For a moment they rested on Blair, then closed again, and Tennant slept.

Blair pointed toward the farther bunk. "That's what you need, too," she counseled.

Colin did not awaken until after midnight; then, at his insistence, Blair curled up in the chair by Tennant's bedside, and ten minutes later she was asleep.

Refreshed with a night of rest, Colin felt no ill effects of his encounter except for an aching hand and swollen cheek. He bathed his face and shaved and, when dawn began graying the window, set about boiling coffee.

He looked toward Blair—cheek pillowed on her arm, long legs tucked under her, she was still sleeping. Gently he laid a blanket about her shoulders. The long, heavy-lashed eyes fluttered, but did not quite open, and the lips half parted, as if ready to smile.

A crimson shaft of sunlight struck suddenly athwart the window, lighting the cabin with dramatic brilliance, touching two sleeping forms.

His eyes fell to Blair's hand, resting on Tennant's forehead. In the years of his absence they had grown closer to each other, and apart from him. . . . Better not to have come back.

Blair had awakened, and Colin poured her a cup of coffee. She was leaning over Tennant, and now she raised her face. "He's coming to!" she cried, and Colin then was convinced that . . . Nate was all that mattered.

Tennant had opened his eyes. Quickly consciousness flowed back; the great recuperative power of the man asserted itself, and in half an hour he was sitting up in the bunk. Once his hand rose gingerly to his swollen jaw, and he looked at Colin with a rueful smile. "I still think I can lick you," he said.

Colin sat down beside him. "Nate," he began, "I'm not going to be here very long. But you are, and so are Blair and Selkie—and maybe I'm Blair Meredith. I'd like to think that when I'm gone nobody is going to suffer because of any whispered lies. You said something the night of the dance that wasn't true. And I know who told you that story—Dove."

Tennant gave an almost imperceptible nod, and Rae went on. "Well, pretty soon you'll find out a few things as far as Dove's concerned, and then you can judge what this story is worth. In the meantime, here's something to think about: it was Dove who dared you to bring in more trappers; it was Dove who stirred up his Cress to fight you, and it was Dove's man Olsen who tried to start trouble between you and me by jumping on Alec."

Tennant looked at Blair. "What do you think?" he asked.

"I think Colin's right."

Nate did not speak again but sat in his bunk with brooding eyes until a half hour later Alec arrived and, at Blair's insistence, Tennant reluctantly consented to be taken to Dr. Benedict.

Carefully Blair bundled him in the cariole, then stood watching until he disappeared down the trail. "Don't be worried about him," Colin closed the door. "Nate's indestructible." He walked to the window and for a time looked out. "I've been thinking about Dove. If he went hunting for me along the Upper Nelson, he can't get back to Learmonth until noon today. But before Col. Dowling comes up tomorrow, you and I have a job to do: Blair, I want you to fly me up to the bay."

"Today?" Her own eyes opened wide. "Today? If anything is happening up there, we've got to know it before Col. Dowling leaves Winnipeg. What we find there may change all his plans." Then as an afterthought he asked, "Can I carry two dogs and a light toboggan in your plane?"

"Of course. At noon I'll fly over here and pick you up. That will make it look like my regular mail flight. Her eyes were brighter with the promise of action. "Colin"—she drew a deep breath—"what are we going to find up there?"

"Maybe the end of a long trail." Yet Colin felt no elation.

Blair began washing the breakfast dishes, and Colin dried them while the silence lengthened.

At last she looked up. "You said you were going away."

"Just as soon as I'm through here."

Silence again. Then, "Why are you going?"

"I'm going because—" He stopped; suddenly he laughed. "This homecoming hasn't been exactly a success, has it, Blair? I brought trouble to Rod, fought with Nate, and broke off with the Bay Company. I've lost everything but your friendship; and, if Nate and I tangle again, I'm faced with the loss of that. You already blame me for the fight."

"But you did go to his cabin."

"My dogs took me there in the storm."

Blair touched his arm. "I'm sorry."

"I'm the one who's sorry. The last thing in the world I ever want to do is hurt you."

"But you haven't."

"You know I have. Nate and I always brought you more pain than happiness, and neither of us is going to change. Even if you marry him—"

Colin broke off and, picking up a cup, began drying it.

EJECTING THE SKUNK

THERE is nothing poetical about this war.

Licking Hitler is like getting a skunk out of the house. In far too many cases the building has to be burned or blasted down, and even then there is a smell left that will take a long time to eliminate. In Rome, where the unsavory intruder has dug in more effectively than usual, the cleansing process will be especially difficult.

In some cases of patriotic ejection, water takes the place of fire. The destruction of the great Pescara dam, in the hydro-electric system east of Rome, is a case in point. The forced flooding of that area is another sad example of the defensive destruction which has had to follow the Hitler gang everywhere.

There is coming, now, a back-wash that will overwhelm the Nazis as Pharaoh and his gang were handled in the Red sea. But not all the water in the world, or all the perfumes of Araby, will ever sweeten that outfit.

WHAT MOTHER NEEDS

MOTHER enjoys flowers and candy and a new handbag and being taken out to dinner. She would probably, however, enjoy those pleasures more if they seemed to come to her spontaneously and individually at various times. They sometimes seem to her a little forced when they are inspired by the convention of Mother's Day, and all the children do it because all the other children are doing it.

Mothers, however, are not disposed to be critical of children bearing gifts. Their great reward for a life's good work lies in evidences of affection and gratitude on the part of their sons and daughters. If they fail to give gifts, Mothers love them just the same anyhow. But if they bring them, Mothers have that greatest of all satisfactions to a good craftsman, that of having their important labors appreciated.

But Mothers need certain things beyond material gifts, and need them this year beyond other years. They need to have their courage sustained by cheerfulness around them—for never did mothers young or old carry such a weight of anxiety. They need consideration in small things—for never did they try to do so much and such varied work. They need help in some of these daily duties. And they need that love which is kind, is patient, which endureth all things, and which never fails.

An unusual bit of war drama is the death of George Sylvester Viereck, Jr., "killed in action," while his father, a notorious objector in the last war, faces trial for "seditious conspiracy" in this one.

WASHINGTON Report

Bricker, Stassen, Johnston
Vice Presidential Choices?

Knox Death Seen Heavy Blow
To Army-Navy Merger Plans

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Backers of Ohio's Governor John Bricker, United States Chamber of Commerce President Eric Johnston and Lieut. Comdr. Harold Stassen of the Navy for the Republican presidential nomination are standing their ground, although most of them now privately concede New York's Governor Thomas E. Dewey will win the GOP plum in a romp.

It is an open secret on Capitol Hill that Dewey probably will be named to head the ticket on the first ballot, and certainly by the second.

Thus, with announcement that Gen. Douglas MacArthur is not a candidate, Bricker, Johnston and Stassen—in the eyes of their sponsors—are top-flight vice presidential timber, and authoritative political sources believe one of them will be Dewey's running mate when the chips are down.

Led by Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, backers of the Buckeye governor will wage a hard but futile fight and then gladly settle for the second place on the ticket. Republicans are said to feel that Bricker, from the middle west, would be certain to bring Ohio into their camp in November. They regard him as a sound, able citizen who would round out what they consider an "invincible" Dewey ticket.

Stassen, who resigned as Minnesota's governor to enter the Navy, will be backed to the hilt by Senator Joseph Ball, his campaign manager. Stassen, who already has announced he can be "drafted" for the presidency, is thought also willing to accept the vice presidential nomination—particularly in the light of views on international cooperation and peace machinery expressed by Dewey in his speech last week in New York.

The real "dark horse," however, may well be suave, world-minded Eric Johnston, who has put his views more and more before the public as time for the convention approaches.

Johnston, a middle-of-the-road liberal, is a far westerner, from the state of Washington, who would weigh heavily on the Pacific coast

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

WILLKIE SAYS HE'S WRONG MAN

WASHINGTON — A friend of Wendell Willkie's who is close to the Roosevelt administration told him the other day that a group of highup officials had been discussing him as the best man for secretary of the navy. While they could not speak for the President, it was the consensus of this group, Willkie was told, that he would be the ideal choice for this important war job.

Willkie gave his friend the following reply:

"Naturally I should be honored to serve my country in such an important capacity. But it would be a mistake for the President to make me secretary of the navy for this reason. We are on the verge of a tremendous invasion. The plans for that invasion were made long ago. I could add nothing to them. Nor could I add anything to their execution. I know nothing about the Navy, and it would be a mistake to appoint me."

"Furthermore, at a time like this, my appointment would be considered political, and politics should play no part in wartime, especially on the eve of a great invasion. At these times, our country comes first. I know that the President, who is out of town and hasn't talked to your friends, will feel the same way."

MORGENTHAU INSPECTION

Hard-working Henry Morgenthau recently caused a furore in the Treasury department which might well be emulated by other cabinet members.

The secretary of the treasury decided to make a surprise inspection of his own shop. So, at about 3 p. m. one warm day last week, he walked into one of the treasury divisions.

It was enjoying not exactly a sit-down strike, but at least a sit-down. One young lady was reading a book, another was perusing a magazine, one was eating an ice-cream cone, another had her shapely legs on a radiator, dreaming about Spring, as the dignified secretary of the treasury stepped in. In fairness, it should be said that their chiefs had been out of town several days on necessary war business.

However, the dismayed secretary of the treasury did find one lady who was working diligently. He inquired what it was about.

"The Byrd report," she replied, referring to the inquiry on government efficiency undertaken by Senator Byrd of Virginia.

"Thank God Byrd isn't here now," exploded Morgenthau.

Afterward, Morgenthau called in some of his high executives and raised Cain. He ordered a tightening up of the woman-power situation and also expects to make surprise inspection trips more frequently.

NOTE—Secretary of the Interior Ickes also used to drop in on his employees, much to their annoyance. In the Coolidge administration, Secretary of State Kellogg, and in the Hoover administration, Secretary of State Stimson did the same.

Physical Therapy Aid in Arthralgia

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

IN THE SPRING the joints and muscles are notably likely to get stiff and sore. This used to be called by the old word rheumatic. Nowadays the sufferer is more likely to be frightened by the more dread word arthritis. Perhaps we had better switch to the even more modern word arthralgia, which simply means pain in the organs of locomotion.

Dr. Clendingen will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

The causes of these conditions and the reasons for their occurrence in the spring may be various. What is spring fever? Well, it's a combination of the accumulated fatigue of living so much indoors in the winter, and a winter diet dominant in foods that are low in vitamins, and the resurgence of the endocrines with some of them overdoing it and some of them underdoing it, thyroid insufficiency and gonad oversufficiency, and psychic states of the "Oh! what's the use?" order.

The same operating causes, with the addition of postural strain produce arthralgia. If it gets serious enough to require treatment not one but a combination of methods corresponding to the multiplicity of causes should be used. Thus we have reports of help in arthritis from Vitamin B concentrates, and from thyroid exhibition. The thyroid patient droops all over and the drooping leads to a postural strain and the postural strain causes arthralgia. Middle aged women patients in the menopause are often crippled by joint pains which yield very well to ovarian extract therapy. All these are established methods of treatment in the arthritis clinic.

Physical Therapy

I am impressed though in the treatment of these arthritic and semi-arthritic patients with the neglect of the methods of physical therapy—water, heat and cold, massage, electricity. Why they are not more used by American physicians is a mystery. There is in the voting.

Army inductees. It is estimated, require a minimum of one and one-half dental fillings.

● DEATH OF NAVY SECRETARY FRANK KNOX dealt a heavy blow to plans for the merger of the armed services into a single department of national defense.

Members of the House committee on post-war military policy revealed that Knox, just before his death, was ready to endorse the proposed merger in principle.

Instead, acting Navy Secretary James V. Forrestal came before the committee and voiced opposition of the Navy to immediate legislation consolidating the armed services.

This has caused some members of the House to question whether Forrestal would exert any great influence on the powerful group of senior admirals who control the Navy, or would give them a free hand. The movement to install Forrestal as Knox's successor is said to have the backing of the admirals.

With the Army leading the fight to merge the armed services, President Roosevelt is faced with a problem of far-reaching importance. And this problem may have some bearing on selection of a successor to Knox.

● SENDING TROOPS INTO THE CHICAGO PROPERTIES of Montgomery Ward and Company is virtually certain to bring efforts in Congress to restrict powers of the president when the second war powers act comes up for renewal.

This act, with its vast body of powers, must be renewed before Dec. 31 or it will go out of existence.

Therefore, sometime in the coming months administration leaders in Congress must start in motion a bill to continue the act. When they do, senators and representatives aroused by the Montgomery Ward plant seizure may propose curbs on the chief executive's powers to take over properties.

● LABOR EXPERTS read into the short-lived rebellion of United Mine Workers leaders in Illinois a move on the part of Ray Edmundson, Illinois state U. M. W. president, to succeed John L. Lewis as national head of the union.

Edmundson had been Lewis' heir apparent for a long time, but apparently the "boss" felt that his Illinois lieutenant was getting too big for his britches. So the U. M. W. executive board slashed Illinois' administrative funds.

Edmundson exploded and announced his resignation as state U. M. W. president.

CHAPTER THIRTY

Throwing both arms across his face, Colin groped his way into the cabin. He called. No answer. He felt about until he reached Tennant, dragged him outside and, rolling him in the snow, beat the flames from his clothes.

One more trip into that blazing cabin—and only one. But Colin was able to rescue his parka and two heavy blankets.

His dogs were dancing in a frenzy as he laid Nate down among the blankets and tied him to the toboggan. In a hoarse voice he gave the signal to his team; wildly barking, they tore down the trail.

Dog-tired, barely able to keep pace with the team, Colin rode the toboggan on the down-grades.

Hours later, it seemed, Colin was standing before his cabin door. With a sense of blurred recognition he knew that someone was coming out; the dogs were barking and jumping. Then all the world went black.

Colin awoke on the floor of his cabin, with someone kneeling by his side; and as his vision cleared he spoke the one word, "Blair."

Painfully he asked through frost and fist-cracked lips, "Where's Nate?"

Then he saw Tennant's body sprawled across the room.

Aching in every joint, Colin forced himself to his feet and, with Blair's help, laid Nate on the bunk. Colin read the question in Blair's eyes. "I knocked him down," he said. "He must have hit the stove when he fell. Let's get some water."

Together they bathed Tennant's wounds. Then Colin looked up. "How long was I out?" he asked.

"Not long," Blair did not raise her eyes from Tennant. "Where did this happen?"

"In his cabin." Rae forced a little hot water between Nate's dry lips; then at sight of Blair's clouded eyes, he came and stood over her.

"Better say it, Blair," he urged. "What's the use of saying anything? But did you have to go to his cabin to force a quarrel?"

"I didn't," Colin faltered, "but—Blair," he said, "it's no good kidding ourselves. There's something in Nate, or me, or in both of us—We'll never change—As soon as this is over I'm going away." Again he looked down at Nate's feverish face.

"If he's not conscious by morning, I'll take him to Learmonth."

"Not to Learmonth!" Fear quickened Blair's voice. "Keep away from Learmonth! Dove is looking for you. I think he's found out something, Colin. He wanted to know if you were here at the cabin, and I told him you were out on the trap line along the Upper Nelson. I never saw him so deadly quiet. Does he know you followed him last night?"

"I don't think so."

"What did you do?"

Rae told her, "I think that plane was bound for the arm of the bay where the photographs were taken," he said. "Dove passed me on the way back. I'm almost certain he didn't see my track." He was silent, his thoughts on Blair's father: Had Dr. Benedict talked?

"It may have been Colonel Dowling's message," he heard Blair say. Sharply, Colin turned. "What message?"

"Colonel Dowling radioed me from Winnipeg. He's flying up to see you day after tomorrow. Do you suppose—" She stopped, and with a little cry leaned over Nate who had opened his eyes. For a moment they rested on Blair, then closed again, and Tennant slept.

Blair pointed toward the farther bunk. "That's what you need, too," she counseled.

Colin did not awaken until after midnight; then, at his insistence, Blair curled up in the chair by Tennant's bedside, and ten minutes later she was asleep.

Refreshed with a night of rest, Colin felt no ill effects of his encounter except for an aching hand and swollen cheek. He bathed his face and shaved and, when dawn began graying the window, set about boiling coffee.

He looked toward Blair—cheek pillowed on her arm, long legs tucked under her, she was still sleeping. Gently he laid a blanket about her shoulders. The long, heavy-lashed eyes fluttered, but did not quite open, and the lips half parted, as if ready to smile.

A crimson shaft of sunlight struck suddenly astir the window, lighting the cabin with dramatic brilliance, touching two sleeping forms.

His eyes fell to Blair's hand, resting on Tennant's forehead. In the years of his absence they had grown closer to each other, and apart from him. . . . Better not to have come back.

Blair had awakened, and Colin poured her a cup of coffee. She was leaning over Tennant, and now she raised her face. "He's coming to!" she cried, and Colin then was convinced that . . . Nate was all that mattered.

Tennant had opened his eyes. Quickly consciousness flowed back; the great recuperative power of the man asserted itself, and in half an hour he was sitting up in the bunk. Once his hand rose gingerly to his swollen jaw, and he looked at Colin with a rueful smile. "I still think I can lick you," he said.

Colin sat down beside him. "Nate," he began, "I'm not going to be here very long. But you are, and so are Blair and Selkirk—and maybe Ima Meredith. I'd like to think that when I'm gone nobody is going to suffer because of any whispered lies. You said something the night of the dance that wasn't true. And I know who told you that story—Dove."

"The Authority on Authorities"

VARIATIONS ENDLESS

SO MANY different kinds of things can happen, on a single deal, that it is hard for a player in a duplicate game to understand some of the scores recorded. Trying to guess what somebody else did to obtain a certain result is often fruitless practice. Frequent questioning of the player concerned will disclose that what happened was entirely different from any guess, and yet not particularly freakish.

One declarer had just caused himself to be set in that contract. West had led the club J to the K. South ruffed one spade in dummy, came to his own hand with the club A, ruffed a second spade, then tried the heart finesse. West won with the K and led a trump back. That compelled South to lose another heart and a spade, so he was down.

"Guess I should have refused to finesse the heart," he said. "If I had taken the ace, I could have ruffed the last spade, and then could have lost only two heart tricks."

Then he looked at the score, and noted that somebody had made 6-Diamonds on the deal. Not only that, but had bid the small slam. "West must have led a heart to him," he hazarded. "Then he could have ruffed out all three spades in the dummy, and would have lost only one trick, in hearts."

It was entirely different, however. West had led the club J. South decided it might be the bottom card of a doubleton, and played for that, whereas the other fellow's method might have seemed the sounder way to try for a small slam. This declarer took in his diamond A and K, giving up all chance to ruff out spade losers, then the second club honor. When it dropped the Q, he knew he was home. He led a diamond to the Q and cashed four clubs, discarding all three spades and the heart 9. Then he tried the finesse of the heart Q for an extra trick. It failed, but he had his six-odd in the bag.

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

What factor decides whether South makes 4-Spades on this deal, or gets set?

RADIO NEWS NOTES

The stage and screen star Gertrude Lawrence, and comedian-author Robert Benchley will be prominent in the festivities, as the "Stage Door Canteen" guest stars, when that program airs Friday. They'll be heard along with Bert Lytell, master of ceremonies, and Raymond Paige's orchestra.

Evelyn Kaye, violinist and concertmistress on Phil Spitalny's "Hour of Charm" Sunday nights, will be spotlighted on the "Mothers For Victory" program scheduled for Sunday, as a special Mother's Day broadcast.

S. James Andrews, director of "Chamber Music Society of Lower Basin Street" and "Mr. and Mrs. North," leaves for the west coast soon for a vacation. He'll remain there for several weeks and will mix business with pleasure by supervising the Walter Winchell broadcasts from Hollywood. Tee Wells assumes command of "Basin Street" and "Mr. and Mrs. North" during Andrews' absence.

Baritone Dick Byron appears as featured soloist on "The Lyn Murray Show," Monday. As his solo, he sings "Since You Went Away." The Lyn Murray Chorus is heard in "The Stein Song," "Together" and a medley of military songs.

Kay Kyser, "Ol' Professor" of radio's "College of Musical Knowledge" program, paid tribute to a long-time associate this week when he gave a party in honor of Sully Mason, who has been with Kyser's band continuously since Kyser organized it at the University of North Carolina 19 years ago.

"The Authority on Authorities"

VARIATIONS ENDLESS

SO MANY different kinds of things can happen, on a single deal, that it is hard for a player in a duplicate game to understand some of the scores recorded. Trying to guess what somebody else did to obtain a certain result is often fruitless practice. Frequently questioning of the player concerned will disclose that what happened was entirely different from any guess, and yet not particularly freakish.

could have lost only two heart tricks.

Then he looked at the score, and noted that somebody had made 6-Diamonds on the deal. Not only that, but had bid the small slam.

"West must have led a heart to him," he hazarded. "Then he could have ruffed out all three spades in the dummy, and would have lost only one trick, in hearts."

It was entirely different, however. West had led the club J. South decided it might be the bottom card of a doubleton, and the other fellow's method might have seemed the sounder way to try for a small slam. This declarer took in his diamond A and K, giving up all chance to ruff out spade losers, then the second club honor. When it dropped the Q, he knew he was home. He led a diamond to the Q and cashed four clubs, discarding all three spades and the heart 9. Then he tried the finesse of the heart Q for an extra trick. It failed, but he had his six-odd in the bag.

One declarer had just caused himself to be set in that contract. West had led the club J to the K. South ruffed one spade in dummy, came to his own hand with the club A, ruffed a second spade, then tried the heart finesse. West won with the K and led a trump back. That compelled South to lose another heart and a spade, so he was down.

"Guess I should have refused to finesse the heart," he said. "If I had taken the ace, I could have ruffed the last spade, and then

163 PICKAWAY BOYS, GIRLS TO BE GRADUATED

Commencement Exercise Dates Are Set For County Schools

WAR CUTS INTO CLASS

Deercreek Program Friday Night First Of 12 In District

Boys entering the Armed Forces and who were enrolled in high schools in the county have diminished the number of seniors who will receive diplomas at the graduation exercises which are scheduled for the next two weeks.

The county superintendent's office reports 163 seniors who may receive diplomas. In 1943 there were 173 graduates in the 12 county high schools.

The first county school to hold graduation exercises is Deercreek township. The program will be at Williamsport school building Friday night. Ten seniors will receive diplomas.

The next county graduation exercises will be held at the Jackson township school May 16, with Perry, Saltcreek and Washington townships all graduating their classes May 17. May 18, exercises will be held at New Holland, Scioto and Walnut townships. May 19 will be graduation day for the classes at Darby and Monroe townships and Ashville and Pickaway township will both hold their exercises on May 24.

Those now listed as seniors in the various schools are—
Darby township: Robert E. Eakin, Wilma Essel, Darrell Furniss, Mary Hicks, Ned Hosler, Geraldine Huffer, Iris Hughes, Jean Hughes, Evelyn Mouser, Donald Myers, Ruth Rowland, Anna Marie Smiff, Carl Wickline and Albert Whitesel.

Deercreek Township: Francis Clark, Harvey Easter, Florence Hanson, Doris Hulse, Donald Pontus, Gerald Reynolds, Doris Lee Schleich, Billy Smith, Phyllis Weaver, Maxine Wright.
